in engineering design and development reliable and accurate computational methods are requested to replace or complement expensive and time consuming experimental trial and error work tremendous advancements have been achieved during recent years due to improved numerical solutions of non linear partial differential equations and computer developments to achieve efficient and rapid calculations nevertheless to further progress in computational methods will require developments in theoretical and predictive procedures both basic and innovative and in applied research accurate experimental investigations are needed to validate the numerical calculations this book contains the edited versions of the papers presented at the tenth international conference on advanced computational methods and experimental measurements in heat transfer and mass transfer held in maribor slovenia in july 2008 the objective of this conference series is to provide a forum for presentation and discussion of advanced topics new approaches and application of advanced computational methods and experimental measurements to heat and mass transfer problems the contributed papers are grouped in the following appropriate sections to provide better access for readers natural and forced convection heat exchangers advances in computational methods heat recovery heat transfer modelling and experiments the study of genetic exchange resulting from natural hybridization horizontal gene transfer and viral recombination has long been marked by controversy between researchers holding different conceptual frameworks those subscribing to a doctrine of species purity have traditionally been reluctant to recognise inferences suggesting anything other than a marginal role for non allopatric divergence leading to gene transfer between different lineages however an increasing number of evolutionary biologists now accept that there is a growing body of evidence indicating the existence of non allopatric diversification across many lineages and all domains of biological diversity divergence with genetic exchange investigates the mechanisms associated with evolutionary divergence and diversification focussing on the role played by the exchange of genes between divergent lineages a process recently termed divergence with gene flow although the mechanisms by which such divergent forms of life exchange genomic material may differ widely the outcomes of interest adaptive evolution and the formation of new hybrid lineages do not successive chapters cover the history of the field detection methodologies outcomes implications for conservation programs and the effects on the human lineage associated with the process of genetic transfer between divergent lineages this research level text is suitable for senior undergraduate and graduate level students taking related courses in departments of genetics ecology and evolution it will also be of relevance and use to professional evolutionary biologists and systematists seeking a comprehensive and authoritative overview of this rapidly expanding field
